

“If I Should Die” Form

In the unlikely event of your death during your international ministry term, Reliant will be required to furnish an official letter of instruction to the host country’s government as to what to do with your remains. Without an official letter, the host government may not release your remains for transport back to your home country. Therefore, it is imperative that this form be filled out completely. You will also need to have this form notarized by an official notary public.

Instructions:

1. Make two copies:
 - Leave one copy with a family member
 - Send the other copy to the Missionary Resources Department of Reliant.

2. Take this original form with you on your international ministry assignment and keep it in a safe place. Also, notify your local team leader or another member of your ministry team as to its specific location.
